

Critics Report, Oct 9. 1896.

The meeting was very good and the members behaved themselves respectably with the exception of two or three, One of which was excused after that there was no more disturbance.

The Judges of the regular debate were not careful to give each man his correct number of good points.

Some members on the + side were not prepared.

The Critic hopes Mr Camp has reformed if such a thing could be possible.

R. Hunt, Critic.
