

Prenton, N. J., April 21, '99

Thruconic Society, Critics Report.

for meeting Mar., 31, '99.

The order of the meeting was good throughout with a few exceptions. If Mr. Buchanan would not jump around his chair so rapidly he might appear to have more sense.

Mr. Presidents opening speech was short and to the point. The critics report was a model one.

The answers to the President's calls for voting were unusually weak and inaudible.

The conversation during calls of the roll interferes with Secretaries hearing the answers.

Mr. Blackwell's oration was good but would have been better if it had not been read.

Mr. Bamford's synopsis was good but was not complete. The gentleman should practice the pronunciation of foreign names.

The speeches of the debaters were generally good but too many imaginary scenes were presented and too many personalities were indulged in. Some gentlemen should speak a little louder. Mr. Schutty would do well to omit the honorary titles which he gave to the gentlemen of the opposite side. Mr. W. Jenkins would increase the intelligibility of his speech by omitting the large words with which he sprinkles his sentences.

Princeton, N. J.,

Chas. Baumgartner,

Critic.