

Trenton N.J. Jan-12-1900

The order of the society could have been improved upon, many of the members used the seats for lounges and sofas. Also the society did not always comply to the President's request for order.

The debate of the day was a well contested one and a credit to the society.

The society should thank Mr Fost for helping it financially. His several fines for Friday were quite a god-send.

Money is in such demand, that the leader on the negative should ^{refrain from} rattling his, or he may be mobbed for the contents of his pockets.

The occupants of the front seats should remember, that it is all right to "make foot-prints on the sands of time," but they should not expend their much needed energy in making foot-prints on Miss Thomas's desk. Isaac Harrison (critic)